EXECUTIVE PROTECTION

The world is a dangerous place for high-profile individuals, where their safety, family, and assets are threatened - a world where elevated status creates elevated risk. These individuals need executive protection. While executive protection agents offer an automatic deterrent for crime, our presence and skill have more benefits as well.

IT PROTECTS COMPANIES' TOP EXECUTIVES

A CEO or other widely recognized member of a company's executive team faces a similar danger to celebrities; however, there's an additional threat that celebrities don't deal with - the investor and business impact of something happening to a company's CEO. The company invests a lot of money in CEOs. They have high expectations to manage growth and restore prominence if the company falls on hard times. If in a worst-case scenario, a top executive dies, the reputation of the company and its share prices may be greatly affected.

IT ENABLES SAFER AND MORE PRODUCTIVE TRAVEL

When you provide secure travel for a CEO or top executive, they may spend waiting time - in cabs or airport lines - doing work or taking meetings by phone. Our presence gives a company leader the opportunity to focus solely on their work while traveling because our team concentrates on arriving at a destination safely and swiftly. CEOs are extremely busy individuals and every second counts to ensure the success of their company.

Additionally, When a company leader is assured of their safe travel, they may be more inclined to increase their number of work trips. This will allow them to have more productive meetings with customers around the country, important employees in different regions, and face-to-face meetings with government officials or investors in the company around the world.

IT PROVIDES IMMEDIATE ASSISTANCE DURING EMERGENCIES

The benefit of having a trained and quality executive protection team traveling with your CEO during a business trip means there is always a first responder immediately available if a company leader experiences a medical emergency or attempted harm from an outside threat.

Fortaris Capital Advisors is comprised of former military and law enforcement professionals. We won't only protect your family, assets, and self; we'll protect your piece of mind. Are you willing to take the risk?
